Subscribing to and unsubscribing from notifications

You can subscribe to individual conversations in issues, pull requests, and team discussions, even if you're not watching the repository or a member of the team where the conversation is occurring. If you're no longer interested in a conversation, you can unsubscribe or customize the types of notifications you receive.

> Notifications beta offers an improved inbox on GitHub and GitHub for mobile. For more information, see "Managing subscriptions and notifications on GitHub."
>
> Notifications beta is currently released as a limited public beta feature and is not yet available to everyone. For more information, see "Enabling Notifications beta."

Managing your notification settings for an issue or pull request

1   On GitHub, navigate to the main page of the repository.

2   Under your repository name, click ⊙ Issues or ⑂ Pull requests.
3   Choose an issue or pull request to subscribe to.

4   In the right sidebar, click Subscribe or Unsubscribe.

5   To customize your notifications, click ⚙.

6   Select the type of notifications you want to receive for this conversation, then click Save.
